Prototype Jam

The MIT Human Dynamics Lab, in collaboration with LawGives, UMKC Law School, and Brooklyn Law School, are working with City of Boston and Kansas City, MO to design and prototype an open source next generation interface for business interactions with city governments.

Designed to work for key interact types such as business permits, small business assistance and grants, this design and prototype effort will culminate with open source, free and documented code that any city could use and contribute to.

Every Wednesday from 4pm-6pm this project is developed by one or more of the partners at regular class sessions hosted by the MIT Media Lab, UMKC Law School and Brooklyn Law School. An in-person prototype jam event is planned for mid-November when all the collaborators can work together on the project and plan a prototype user engagement test and final semester demo presentation.
