DazzaGreenwood.com

LAWYER AS CTO

MARCH 26, 2014 | DAZZA | LEAVE A COMMENT

I'm honored to participate in a panel at the upcoming symposium "From Bleak House to Geek House: Evolving Law for Entrepreneurial Lawyers" on April 4 at Brooklyn Law School:

From Bleak House to Geek House will explore ways in which we can (1) use the law to improve the needs of entrepreneurs and society, and (2) use technology and other innovations to improve the law and legal process. Agenda: www.brooklaw.edu/bleakhouseagenda

I'm moderating the panel on "Lawyer as CTO" and set up a page at MIT with more information and ways to share your questions or ideas. Below, check out feedback received to date:

GeekHouse UnPanel Live Idea and Question Feed : Form Responses

Timestamp	As a Panelist, My Idea, Question or Other Comment Is...	As a Participant, My Idea, Q or Other Comment Is
4/2/2014 3:20:02		Talk about roles, respective perspectives and relationships
4/2/2014 6:46:33	Avoid presentations. Innovate the format of the panel.
4/2/2014 7:14:25	How to rapidly phase shift or state change back and forth between the roles of lawyer and CTO without grinding the transmission (or career).
4/3/2014 6:31:18	How would the academy best educate the future lawyer CTO?
4/3/2014 6:39:02	What kind of experiential learning opportunities can be created to provide law students contextualization for working with an organization's knowledge assets? For example, a law student can intern in the prosecutor's office or public defender's office to learn criminal law and litigation, what analog elements exist for the potential CTO?
4/3/2014 23:14:58	On the prep call today, we discussed using scenarios to demonstrate how common situations looks from the perspective of lawyer and the perspective of CTO, and to provide a good basis for sharing war stories.
4/3/2014 23:17:24	Potential Scenarios: 1) Crisis Response to Potential Data Breach; 2) High Priority Launch of Web Service; 3) Enterprise Level Big Data Analytics
4/5/2014 11:59:03		How do we best teach lawyers
7/11/2014 6:02:52	I loved the use of Google forms and spreadsheets to attract and rate ideas.	I Loved the use of Google For Spreadsheets and Embed Coc Idea Generation and Ratings!